

Watershed Stewardship Program for District Residents Grant RFA – Q&A

Q1: Does this RFA require the Applicant to submit audited financial statements?

A1: If the Applicant has undergone an audit or financial review, it must provide the most recent audited financial statement or reviews. If audited financial statements or reviews are not available, the Applicant must provide its most recent complete year's unaudited financial statements.

Q2: What age is considered to be “young-adult” in regards to the target audience?

A2: Young-adult is a person in their teens or early twenties.

Q3: How long should each of the 8 sessions be?

A3: There is not an exact time requirement for each session. Historically, sessions have been roughly 2.5 hours long.

Q4: Does the program require 8 distinct sessions?

A4: Yes. The program must include at least 8 distinct interactive training sessions.

Q5: Do the sessions need to be spaced out over an entire semester?

A5: Yes. The sessions, capstone projects, engagement, and networking opportunities should be spaced out over an entire semester, typically lasting 12 – 18 weeks.

Q6: Is the Watershed Stewardship program not meant for minors, e.g. elementary and middle-school-aged children?

A6: The Watershed Stewardship program is not for minors. District residents that are young-adults and adults from historically under-represented communities are the target audience. See more information about the target audience in the RFA on page 22 under “Target Audience”.
